

FINANCIAL CONTRACT NETTING IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 1998

AUGUST 21, 1998.—Ordered to be printed

Mr. LEACH, from the Committee on Banking and Financial Services, submitted the following

REPORT

[To accompany H.R. 4393]

[Including cost estimate of the Congressional Budget Office]

The Committee on Banking and Financial Services, to whom was referred the bill (H.R. 4393) to revise the banking and bankruptcy insolvency laws with respect to the termination and netting of financial contracts, and for other purposes, having considered the same, report favorably thereon without amendment and recommend that the bill do pass.

PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

H.R. 4393, the Financial Contract Netting Improvement Act of 1998 (Act), contains legislative proposals forwarded to Congress by the nation's financial regulators in order to guard against systemic risk to the nation's financial system. Except for Section 14, the provisions of this Act are based on recommendations made by the President's Working Group on Financial Markets following a review of current statutory provisions governing the treatment of qualified financial contracts and similar financial contracts upon the insolvency of a counterparty. The Working Group consists of the Securities and Exchange Commission; the Commodity Futures Trading Commission; the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation; the Department of the Treasury, including the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency; the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System; and the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The recommendations of the Working Group were transmitted to Congress by Treasury Secretary Rubin in his role as Chairman of the Working Group on March 16, 1998.

The provisions, forwarded by Secretary Rubin, amend the U.S. Bankruptcy Code; the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (FDIA), as amended by the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 (FIRREA); the payment system risk reduction and netting provisions of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991 (FDICIA); and the Securities Investor Protection Act of 1971 (SIPA). These amendments address the treatment of certain financial transactions following the insolvency of a party to such transactions. The amendments are designed to clarify and improve consistency between the applicable statutes and to minimize risk of a disruption within or between financial markets upon the insolvency of a market participant.

Section 14 of H.R. 4393 incorporates an amendment to the Federal Reserve Act transmitted to the Committee on Banking and Financial Services (the Committee) on July 30, 1998, by Alan Greenspan, Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System. This section expands the kinds of assets that the Federal Reserve can use as collateral to back currency. In his transmittal letter to the Committee, Chairman Greenspan stated that the current "limitations on eligible currency collateral could become potentially problematic for the implementation of monetary policy under unusual circumstances", citing as an example problems stemming from the century date change.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

INSOLVENCY PROVISIONS

Since its adoption in 1978, the Bankruptcy Code has been amended several times to afford different treatment for certain financial transactions upon the bankruptcy of a debtor, as compared with the treatment of other commercial contracts and transactions. These amendments were designed to further the policy goal of minimizing the systemic risk potentially arising from certain inter-related financial activities and markets. Similar amendments have been made to the FDIA and FDICIA, and both the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) and the Securities Investor Protection Corporation (SIPC) have issued policy statements and letters clarifying general issues in this regard.

Systemic risk is the risk that the failure of a firm or disruption of a market or settlement system will cause widespread difficulties at other firms, in other market segments or in the financial system as a whole. If participants in certain financial activities are unable to enforce their rights to terminate financial contracts with an insolvent entity in a timely manner, or to offset or net their various contractual obligations, the resulting uncertainty and potential lack of liquidity could increase the risk of an inter-market disruption.

The Committee and Congress have taken steps in the past to ensure that the risk of such systemic events is minimized. For example, both the Bankruptcy Code and the FDIA contain provisions that protect the rights of financial participants to terminate swap agreements, forward contracts, securities contracts, commodity contracts and repurchase agreements following the bankruptcy or insolvency of a counterparty to such contracts or agreements. Furthermore, other provisions prevent transfers made under such circumstances from being avoided as preferences or fraudulent conveyances (except when made with actual intent to defraud). Protections also are afforded to ensure that the netting, set off and collateral foreclosure provisions of such transactions and master agreements for such transactions are enforceable.

In addition, FDICIA, was enacted in 1991 to protect the enforceability of close-out netting provisions in “netting contracts” between “financial institutions.” FDICIA states that the goal of enforcing netting arrangements is to reduce systemic risk within the banking system and financial markets. In simple terms, netting occurs when money payments, entitlements, or obligations arising under one or more contract or a clearing arrangement are all offset against each other leaving one net amount.

The orderly resolution of insolvencies involving counterparties to such contracts also is an important element in the reduction of systemic risk. The FDIC allows the receiver of an insolvent insurance depository institution the opportunity to review the status of certain contracts to determine whether to terminate or transfer the contracts to new counterparties. These provisions provide the receiver with flexibility in determining the most appropriate resolution for the failed institution and facilitate the reduction of systemic risk by permitting the transfer, rather than termination, of such contracts.

Not only does this Act update legislation initiated by the Committee in 1989 and 1991 but it also builds on recommendations first contained in a comprehensive report (Part 3 of Committee hearing record 103–88) on derivatives issued on October 28, 1993, by the minority staff of the Committee under the direction of then Ranking Minority Member, Representative Leach. During preparation of the report, the staff submitted a series of questions to Federal financial regulatory bodies concerning the adequacy and consistency of the netting provisions contained in the Bankruptcy Code, FIRREA, and FDICIA. In sum, all agencies stated that the netting provisions should be amended and conformed to provide greater certainty to the market. The agencies stated that the differences in coverage provided by the various acts have created legal uncertainty, emanating mainly from the definitional sections of FIRREA and the Bankruptcy Code which limit netting to specific types of contracts expressly enumerated.

In summary, the insolvency provisions of the Act are designed to clarify the treatment of certain financial contracts upon the insolvency of a counterparty and to promote the reduction of systemic risk. These provisions further the goals of prior amendments to the Bankruptcy Code and the FDIA on the treatment of those financial contracts and of the payment system risk reduction provisions in FDICIA. The insolvency provisions of the Act have four principal purposes:

To strengthen the provisions of the Bankruptcy Code and the FDIA that protect the enforceability of termination and close-out netting and related provisions of certain financial agreements and transactions.

To harmonize the treatment of these financial agreements and transactions under the Bankruptcy Code and the FDIA.

To amend the FDIA and FDICIA to clarify that certain rights of the FDIC acting as conservator or receiver for a failed insured depository institution (and in some situations, rights of SIPC and receivers of certain uninsured institutions) cannot be defeated by operation of the terms of FDICIA.

To make other substantive and technical amendments to clarify the enforceability of financial agreements and transactions in bankruptcy or insolvency.

All these changes are designed to further minimize systemic risk to the banking system and the financial markets.

CURRENCY COLLATERAL REQUIREMENT

Current law requires that the Federal Reserve collateralize Federal Reserve notes when they are issued. The list of eligible collateral includes Treasury and Federal agency securities, gold certificates, Special Drawing Right certificates, and foreign currencies. In addition, the legally eligible backing for currency includes discount window loans made under section 13 of the Federal Reserve Act. Over the years, sections were added to the Act that permit lending under provisions other than section 13 and against a broader range of collateral than allowed under section 13. However, the currency collateralization requirement was not similarly amended, thus limiting the types of loans the Federal Reserve can use to back the currency.

The Federal Reserve has expressed concern that in recent years the amount of excess currency collateral has been dwindling primarily because of the development of retail sweep accounts—accounts which have been created by depository institutions to reduce their reserve holdings with the Federal Reserve System. Since the Federal Reserve uses reserves to purchase eligible collateral they serve as a source of excess collateral for currency. The amount of reserves that banks hold at the Federal Reserve has decreased from $28 billion in 1993 to $8 billion today, again with the reduction being attributed to the use of retail sweep accounts. As additional sweep programs are implemented by depository institutions, the amount of reserves will further decrease, thereby decreasing the margin of excess currency collateral.

According to the Federal Reserve, the smaller margin of available collateral poses a potential problem for the Federal Reserve in its conduct of monetary policy and its duties to avoid systemic risk to the nation's financial system. In a Federal Reserve staff analysis which accompanied Chairman Greenspan's transmittal letter for the legislation, this potential conflict between the pursuit of both goals was described as follows:

For example, one or more banks could experience operational problems (perhaps owing to computer failures related to the century date change) that require a large volume of temporary funding from the discount window. Such banks might not be able to tender the types of collateral that would qualify for loans under Section 13. Consequently, any such loans would need to be made under other provisions of the Act and under current law would not be eligible to back currency.

If the aggregate need for such loans exceeded excess currency collateral, the Federal Reserve would be faced with an unpalatable choice. Were the Federal Reserve to extend the credit, it would not be able to absorb all of the resulting excess reserves by selling Treasury securities from its portfolio, because selling the necessary amount would cause a deficiency in currency collateral. The increase in excess reserves would reduce short-term interest rates, causing an unintended shift in the stance of monetary policy. The situation would persist until the loans were repaid. Were the Federal Reserve instead to refuse to make the discount loans in order to maintain the stance of monetary policy and continue to collateralize the currency, the depository institutions seeking credit would not be able to meet their obligations, with possible adverse implications for the financial system as well as the individual depository institutions.

To avoid this "unpalatable choice" between conducting an efficacious monetary policy and protecting the nation's financial system from systemic risk, the Federal Reserve proposes to amend the Federal Reserve Act to authorize the Federal Reserve to collateralize the currency with all types of discount window loans. Section 14 of H.R. 4393 incorporates such an amendment.

INTRODUCTION OF LEGISLATION

On July 16, 1998, Representatives Leach, LaFalce, McCollum and Roukema introduced H.R. 4239, which contained the Working Group's recommendations as transmitted by Secretary Rubin. Before the Committee markup of the legislation, staff of the Working Group forwarded a number of modifications further perfecting the legislation. The insolvency provisions contained in H.R. 4393, as introduced on August 4, 1998, and reported, incorporate the provisions of H.R. 4239 with these modifications. The changes incorporated into H.R. 4239 include a clarification of what kinds of financial contracts will receive differential treatment under the various Federal insolvency laws. In addition, the Bankruptcy Code is amended to provide that certain assets transferred to an eligible entity in connection with an asset-backed securitization generally will not be included within the bankruptcy estate of the debtor. H.R. 4393 also incorporates the amendment recommended by the Federal Reserve Board to expand the kinds of assets the Federal Reserve can use as collateral to back Federal Reserve notes.

HEARINGS

The Committee held two hearings on the derivatives market generally, H.R. 4062, the Financial Derivatives Supervisory Improvement Act, and the provisions of this Act.

The first hearing was held on July 17, 1998. Appearing before the Committee were: Dennis Oakley, Managing Director of Global Markets, Chase Manhattan Bank; Mark C. Brickell, Managing Director, J.P. Morgan & Co., Incorporated; George M. James, Managing Director, Morgan Stanley Dean Witter & Company; Charles Smithson, Managing Director, CIBC World Markets; Susan Schmidt Bies, Exec. Vice President of Risk Management, First Tennessee National Corporation; Wendy Gramm, Distinguished Senior Fellow, James Buchanan Center, George Mason University and former CFTC Chairperson; John C. Coffee, Jr., Adolf A. Berle, Professor, Columbia University Law School; Robert Mackay, Vice President, National Economic Research Associates; Martin Regalia, Vice President for Economic Policy and Chief Economist, U.S. Chamber of Commerce; M. Scott Gordon, Chairman of the Board of Directors, Chicago Mercantile Exchange; Patrick H. Arbor, Chairman of the Board, Chicago Board of Trade; and Daniel Rappaport, Chairman, New York Mercantile Exchange.

Witnesses at this hearing focused their testimony on H.R. 4062 and the derivatives market in general. However, Mr. James of Morgan Stanley Dean Witter discussed the insolvency issues surrounding the Act, and stated that the recommended bankruptcy legislation has the full support of the financial services industry and reflects consensus among the industry, financial regulators, and Congress. He stated that the legislation is necessary to provide market participants with certainty that their contractual arrangements will be honored in case of insolvency and to minimize systemic risk. Given the recent changes in financial accounting standards, the amendments made in the bill to the bankruptcy code regarding asset securitization, he maintained, underscore the urgency of the legislation. The bill, he said, would bring bankruptcy and bank insolvency laws into line with current market transactions without threatening the protection of debtors.

A second hearing was held on July 24, 1998. Testifying before the Committee were: John D. Hawke, Under Secretary, U.S. Department of the Treasury; Alan Greenspan, Chairman, Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System; Brooksley Born, Chairperson, Commodity Futures Trading Commission; Richard Lindsey, Director of Market Regulation, Securities and Exchange Commission; Michael L. Brosnan, Deputy Comptroller for Risk Evaluation, Office of the Comptroller of the Currency; Kenneth Ryder, Executive Director of Research, Statistics and Analysis, Office of Thrift Supervision; Douglas H. Jones, Senior Deputy General Counsel, Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation; Douglas E. Harris, Partner, Arthur Andersen; and Richard A. Miller, Partner, White & Case.

The witnesses, in general, focused their testimony on H.R. 4062 and the derivatives market in general, with the exception of the FDIC which focused its testimony on this Act. Mr. Hawke from Treasury and Mr. Brosnan of the OCC stated that the insolvency reforms contained in the Act would help reduce systemic risk in financial markets. Mr. Brosnan continued by stating that the legislation would clarify and ensure consistent treatment and enhanced enforceability of qualified financial contracts (QFCs) and other similar contracts in instances of counterparty insolvency, and that the legislation includes an important OCC proposal to clarify that a counterparty to a QFC with an uninsured bank would have the same rights as a counterparty to a QFC with an insured bank. Federal Reserve Chairman Greenspan stated that the legislation would shore up the infrastructure of U.S. markets, would enhance U.S. market competitiveness, and would address the concern that the traditional insolvency process can create serious risks to counterparties due to the price volatility of financial assets. The comments of Mr. Jones from the FDIC regarding H.R. 4393 were extensive. In sum, he stated that as a result of the legislation, market participants will have a better understanding of their rights and will be able to more accurately assess and manage the risks arising from derivative contracts. He stated that without modification, the current status governing netting will not adequately address market innovations. The Act, he said, would benefit the market and fix a problem before it arises.

COMMITTEE CONSIDERATION AND VOTES

On August 5, 1998, the full Committee met in open session to consider H.R. 4393, the Financial Contract Netting Improvement Act of 1998. A quorum being present, the Committee by voice vote passed H.R. 4393 final passage and ordered it to be favorably reported to the full House of Representatives for consideration. Also, the Committee adopted, by voice vote, a motion to authorize the Chairman to offer such motions as may be necessary in the House of Representatives to go to conference with the Senate on a similar bill.

COMMITTEE OVERSIGHT FINDINGS

In compliance with clause 2(1)(3)(A) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee reports that the findings and recommendations of the Committee, based on oversight activities under cause 2(b)(1) of rule X of the Rules of the House of Representatives, are incorporated in the descriptive portions of this report.

COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT REFORM AND OVERSIGHT FINDINGS

No findings and recommendations of the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight were received as referred to in clause 2(1)(3)(D) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives.

CONSTITUTIONAL AUTHORITY

In compliance with clause 2(1)(4) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the constitutional authority for Congress to enact this legislation is derived from the power to Congress to make “uniform laws on the subject of bankruptcies” (Clause 4, Section 8, Article I, Constitution) and the interstate commerce clause (Clause 3, Section 8, Article I, Constitution). In addition, the power “to coin money” and “regulate the value thereof” (Clause 5, Section 8, Article I, Constitution) has been broadly construed to authorize regulation of every phase of the subject of currency, including the Federal regulation and chartering of banks.

NEW BUDGET AUTHORITY AND TAX EXPENDITURES

Clause 2(1)(3)(B) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives is inapplicable because this legislation does not provide new budgetary authority or increased tax expenditures.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE STATEMENT

No advisory committees within the meaning of section 5(b) of the Federal Advisory Committee Act were created by this legislation.

CONGRESSIONAL ACCOUNTABILITY ACT

The reporting requirement under section 102(b)(3) of the Congressional Accountability Act (P.L. 104-1) is inapplicable because this legislation does not relate to terms and conditions of employment or access to public services or accommodations.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATE AND UNFUNDED MANDATES ANALYSIS

The CBO cost estimates and unfunded mandates analysis for the bill were requested but were not available at the time the report was filed. The Committee will provide the analysis in a subsequent addendum to the report.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS

Section 1. Short title

Section 1 cites the Act as the “Financial Contract Netting Improvement Act of 1998”.

Section 2. Treatment of certain agreements by conservators or receivers of insured depository institutions

Subsections (a) through (f) amend the FDIA definitions of “qualified financial contract,” “securities contract,” “commodity contract,” “forward contract,” “repurchase agreement” and “swap agreement” to make them consistent with the definitions in the Bankruptcy Code.

Subsection (b) amends the definitions of “securities contract” to encompass options on securities and margin loans. The inclusion of “margin loans” in the definition is intended to encompass only those loans commonly known in the securities industry as “margin loans” and does not include other loans utilizing securities as collateral, however documented.

Subsection (b) also specifies that purchase, sale and repurchase obligations under a participation in a commercial mortgage load do not constitute “securities contracts.” While a contract for the purchase or sale or a participation may constitute a “securities contract”, the purchase, sale or repurchase obligation embedded in a participation agreement does not make that agreement a “securities contract.”

Subsection (e) amends the definition of “repurchase agreement” to codify the substance of the FDIC’s 1995 regulation defining repurchase agreement to include those on qualified foreign government securities. See 12 C.F.R. § 360.5. The term “qualified foreign government securities” is defined to include those that are direct obligations of, or fully guaranteed by, central governments of members of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD). Subsection (e) reflects developments in the repurchase agreement markets which increasingly use foreign government securities as the underlying assets. Any risk presented by this modification is addressed by limiting it to those obligating or guaranteed by OECD member states.

Subsection (e), like subsection (b) for “securities contracts”, specifies that repurchase obligations under a participation in an commercial mortgage loan do not make the participation agreement a “repurchase agreement.” Such repurchase obligations embedded in participations in commercial loans (such as recourse obligations) do not constitute a “repurchase agreement.” However, a repurchase agreement involving the transfer of participations in commercial mortgage loans with a simultaneous agreement to repurchase the participation on demand or at a date certain one year or less after such transfer could constitute a “repurchase agreement.”

Subsection (f) amends the definition of “swap agreement” to include an “interest rate swap, option, future, or forward agreement, including a rate floor, rate cap, rate collar, cross-currency rate swap, and basis swap; a spot, same day-tomorrow, tomorrow-next forward or other foreign exchange agreement; a currency swap, option, future, or forward agreement; an equity index or equity swap, option, future, or forward agreement; a debt index or debt swap, option, future, or forward agreement; a credit swap, option, future, or forward agreement; a commodity swap, option, future, or forward agreement or any other similar agreement.” This amendment would achieve contractual netting across economically similar over-the-counter products that can be terminated and closed out on a mark-to-market basis.

The definition of “swap agreement” in this subsection (and section 8) does not include transactions that are, in substance, commercial, consumer or industrial loans. Traditional commercial and lending arrangements, or other non-financial market transactions, such as commercial, residential or consumer loans, cannot be treated as “swaps” under either the FDI Act or the Bankruptcy Code because the parties purport to document or label the transactions as “swap agreements.” In addition, these definitions apply only for purposes of the FDIA and the Bankruptcy Code. These definitions, and the characterization of a certain transaction as a “swap agreement” are not intended to effect the characterization, definition, or treatment of any instruments under any other statute, regulation, or rule including, but not limited to, the statutes, regulations or rules enumerated in subsection (f).

Subsection (g) amends the FDIA by adding a definition for “transfer,” which is a key term used in the FDIA, to ensure that it is broadly construed to encompass dispositions of property or interests in property. The definition mirrors that in section 101(54) of the Bankruptcy Code.

Subsection (h) makes clarifying technical changes to conform the receivership and conservatorship provisions of the FDIA. This subsection (h) also clarifies that the FDIA expressly protects rights under security agreements, arrangements or other credit enhancement related to one or more qualified financial contracts (QFCs). An example of a security arrangement is a right of set off, and examples of other credit enhancements are letters of credit, guarantees, reimbursement obligations and other similar agreements.

Subsection (i) clarifies that no provision of Federal or state law relating to the avoidance or preferential or fraudulent transfer (including the anti-preference provision of the National Bank Act) can be invoked to avoid a transfer made in connection with any QFC of an insured depository institution in conservatorship or receivership, absent actual fraudulent intent on the part of the transferee.

Section 3. Authority of the corporation with respect to failed and failing institutions

Section 3 provides that no provision of law, including FDICIA, shall be construed to limit the power of the FDIC to transfer or to repudiate any QFC in accordance with its powers under the FDIA. As discussed below, there has been some uncertainty regarding whether or not FDICIA limits the authority of the FDIC to transfer or to repudiate QFCs of an insolvent financial institution. Section 3—as well as other provisions in the Act—clarify that FDICIA does not limit the transfer powers of the FDIC with respect to QFCs.

Section 3 denies enforcement to “walkaway” clauses in QFCs. A walkaway clause is defined as a provision that, after calculation of a value of a party’s position or an amount due to or from one of the parties upon termination, liquidation or acceleration of the QFC, either does not create a payment obligation of a party or extinguishes a payment obligation of a party in whole or in part solely because of such party’s status as a non-defaulting party.

Section 4. Amendments relating to transfers of qualified financial contracts

Subsection (a) amends the FDIA to expand the transfer authority of the FDIC to permit transfer of QFCs to “financial institutions” as defined in FDICIA or in regulations. This provision will allow the FDIC to transfer QFCs to a non-depository financial institutions, provided the institution is not subject to bankruptcy or insolvency proceedings.

The new FDIA provisions specifies that when the FDIC transfers QFCs that are subject to the rules of a particular clearing organization, the transfer will not require the clearing organization to accept the transferee as a member of the organization. This provision gives the FDIC flexibility in resolving QFCs subject to the rules of a clearing organization, while preserving the ability of such organizations to enforce appropriate risk reducing membership requirements.

The new FDIA provision also permits transfers to an eligible financial institution that is a non-U.S. person, or the branch or agency of a non-U.S. person if, following the transfer, the contractual rights of the parties would be enforceable substantially to the same extent as under the FDIA.

Subsection (b) amends the notification requirements following a transfer of the QFCs of a failed depository institution to require the FDIC to notify any party to a transferred QFC of such transfer by 5:00 p.m. (Eastern Time) on the business day following the date of the appointment of the FDIC acting as receiver or following the date of such transfer by the FDIC acting as a conservator. This amendment is consistent with the policy statement on QFCs issued by the FDIC on December 12, 1989.

Subsection (c) amends the FDIA to clarify the relationship between the FDIA and FDICIA. There has been some uncertainty whether FDICIA permits counterparties to terminate or liquidate a QFC before the expiration of the time period provided by the FDIA during which the FDIC may repudiate or transfer a QFC in a conservatorship or receivership. Subsection (c) provides that a party may not terminate a QFC based solely on the appointment of the FDIC as receiver until 5:00 p.m. (Eastern Time) on the business day following the appointment of the receiver or after the person has received notice of a transfer under FDIA section 11(d)(9), or based solely on the appointment of the FDIC as conservator, notwithstanding the provisions of FDICIA. This provides the FDIC with an opportunity to undertake an orderly of the insured depository institution.

The amendment also prohibits the enforcement of rights of termination or liquidation that are based solely on the “financial condition” of the depository institution in receivership or conservatorship. For example, termination based on a cross-default provision in a QFC that is triggered upon a default under another contract could be stayed if such other default was caused by an acceleration of amounts due under that other contract, and such acceleration was based solely on the appointment of a conservator or receiver for that depository institution. Similarly, a provision in a QFC permitting termination of the QFC based solely on a downgraded credit rating of a party will not be enforceable in an FDIC receivership or conservatorship because the provision is based solely on the financial condition of the depository institution in default. However, any payment, delivery or other performance-based default, or breach of a representation or covenant putting in question the enforceability of the agreement, will not be deemed to be based solely on financial condition for purposes of this provision. The amendment is not intended to prevent counterparties from taking all actions permitted and recovering all damages authorized upon repudiation of any QFC by a conservator or receiver.

The amendment allows the FDIC to meet its obligation to provide notice to parties to transferred QFCs by taking steps reasonably calculated to provide notice to such parties by the required time. This is consistent with the existing policy statement on QFCs issued by the FDIC on December 12, 1989.

Finally, the amendment permits the FDIC to transfer QFCs of a failed depository institution to a bridge bank or a depository institution organized by the FDIC for which a conservator is appointed either (i) immediately upon the organization of such institution or (ii) at the time of a purchase and assumption transaction between the FDIC and the institution. This provision clarifies that such institutions are not to be considered financial institutions that are ineligible to receive such transfers under FDIA section 11(e)(9). This is consistent with the existing policy statement on QFCs issued by the FDIC on December 12, 1989.

Section 5. Amendments relating to disaffirmance or repudiation of qualified financial contracts

Section 5 limits the disaffirmance and repudiation authority of the FDIC with respect to QFCs so that such authority is consistent with the FDIC’s transfer authority under FDIA section 11(e)(9). This ensures that no disaffirmance, repudiation or transfer authority of the FDIC may be exercised to “cherry-pick” or otherwise treat independently all the QFCs between a depository institution in default and a person or any affiliate of such person. The FDIC has announced that its policy is not to repudiate or disaffirm QFCs selectively. This unified treatment is fundamental to the reduction of systemic risk.

Section 6. Clarifying amendment relating to master agreements

Section 6 states that a master agreement for one or more securities contracts, commodity contracts, forward contracts, repurchase agreements or swap agreements will be treated as a single QFC under the FDIA. This provision ensures that cross-product netting pursuant to a master agreement will be enforceable under the FDIA. Cross-product netting permits a wide variety of financial transactions between two parties to be netted, thereby maximizing the present and potential future risk-reducing benefits of the netting arrangement between the parties. Express recognition of the enforceability of such cross-product master agreements furthers the policy of increasing legal certainty and reducing systemic risks in the case of an insolvency of a large financial participant. Similar Bankruptcy Code clarifications to recognize cross-product netting both under a master agreement and in the absence of a master agreement are described below.

Section 7. Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991

Subsection (a)(1). FDICIA provides that a netting arrangement will be enforced pursuant to its terms, notwithstanding the failure of a party to the agreement. However, the current netting provisions of FDICIA limit this protection to “financial institutions,” which include depository institutions. This subsection amends the FDICIA definition of covered institutions to include (i) uninsured national and State member banks, irrespective of their eligibility for deposit insurance and (ii) foreign banks (including the foreign bank and its branches or agencies as a combined group or only the foreign bank parent of a branch or agency). The Federal Reserve Board already has by regulation included certain foreign banks in the definition of a “financial institution” for purposes of FDICIA and the latter change will statutorily extend the protections of FDICIA to ensure that U.S. financial organizations participating in netting agreements with foreign banks are covered by the Act, thereby enhancing the safety and soundness of these arrangements.

Subsection (a)(2) amends FDICIA to provide that, for purposes of FDICIA, two or more clearing organizations that enter into a netting contract are considered “members” of each other. This assures the enforceability of netting arrangements involving two or more clearing organizations and a member common to all such organizations, thus reducing systemic risk in the event of the failure of such a member. Under the current FDICIA provisions, the enforceability of such arrangements depends on a case-by-case determination that clearing organizations could be regarded as members of each other for purposes of FDICIA.

Subsection (a)(3) amends the FDICIA definition of netting contract and the general rules applicable to netting contracts. The current FDICIA provisions require that the netting agreement must be governed by the law of the United States or a State to receive the protections of FDICIA. However, many of these agreements, particularly netting arrangements covering positions taken in foreign exchange dealings, are governed by the laws of a foreign country. This subsection broadens the definition of “netting contract” to include those agreements governed by foreign law, and preserves the FDICIA requirement that a netting contract is not invalid under, or precluded by, Federal law.

Subsections (b) and (c) establish two exceptions to FDICIA’s protection of the enforceability of the provisions of netting contracts between financial institutions and among clearing organization members.

First, the termination provisions of netting contracts will not be enforceable based solely on (i) the appointment of a conservator for an insolvent depository institution under the FDIA or (ii) the appointment of a receiver for such institution under the FDIA, if such receiver transfers or repudiates QFCs in accordance with the FDIA and gives notice of a transfer by 5:00 p.m. on the business day following the appointment of a receiver. This change is made to confirm the FDIC’s flexibility to transfer or repudiate the QFCs of an insolvent depository institution in accordance with the terms of the FDIA. This modification also provides important legal certainty regarding the treatment of QFCs under the FDIA, because the current relationship between the FDIA and FDICIA is unclear.

The second exception provides that FDICIA does not override a stay order under SIPA with respect to foreclosure on securities (but not cash) collateral of a debtor (section 12 makes a conforming change to SIPA).

Subsections (b) and (c) also clarify that a security agreement or other credit enhancement related to a netting contract is enforceable to the same extent as the underlying netting contract.

Subsection (d) adds a new section 407 to FDICIA. This new section provides that, notwithstanding any other law, QFCs with uninsured national banks or uninsured Federal branches or agencies that are placed in receivership or conservatorship will be treated in the same manner as if the contract were with an insured national bank or insured Federal branch for which a receiver or conservator was appointed. This provision will ensure that parties to QFCs with uninsured national banks or uninsured Federal branches or agencies will have the same rights and obligations as parties entering into the same agreements with insured depository institutions. The new section also specifically limits the powers of a receiver or conservator for an uninsured national bank or uninsured Federal branch or agency to those contained in 12 U.S.C. §§ 1821(e) (8), (9), and (11), which address QFCs.

While the amendment would apply the same rules to uninsured national banks and Federal branches and agencies that apply to insured institutions, the provision would not change the rules that apply to insured institutions. Nothing in this section would amend the International Banking Act, the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, the National Bank Act, or other statutory provisions with respect to receivership of insured national banks or Federal branches. It is noted that new section 407 may need to be amended if legislation is enacted to permit the creation of so-called “wholesale financial institutions.”

Section 8. Bankruptcy Code amendments

Subsection (a)(1) amends the Bankruptcy Code definitions of “repurchase agreement” and “swap agreement” to conform with the amendments to the FDIA contained in sections 2(e) and 2(f) of the Act.

In connection with the definition of “repurchase agreement,” the term “qualified foreign government securities” is defined to include securities that are direct obligations of, or fully guaranteed by, central governments of members of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD). This language reflects developments in the repurchase agreement markets, which increasingly use foreign government securities as the underlying asset. Any risk presented by this modification is addressed by limiting it to those obligating or guaranteed by OECD member states.

Subsection (a)(1) specifies that repurchase obligations under a participation in an commercial mortgage loan do not make the participation agreement a “repurchase agreement.” Such repurchase obligations embedded in participations in commercial loans (such as recourse obligations) do not constitute a “repurchase agreement.” However, a repurchase agreement involving the transfer of participations in commercial mortgage loans with a simultaneous agreement to repurchase the participation on demand or at a date certain one year or less after such transfer could constitute a “repurchase agreement.”

The amendments to the definition of “repurchase agreement” are not intended to affect the interpretation of the definition of “securities contract.”

The definition of “swap agreement,” in conjunction with the addition of “spot foreign exchange transactions” that was added to the definition in 1994, will achieve contractual netting across economically similar over-the-counter products that can be terminated and closed out on a mark-to-market basis.

The definition of “swap agreement” originally was intended to provide sufficient flexibility to avoid the need to amend the definition as the nature and use of swap transactions matured. For that reason, the phrase “or any other similar agreement” was included in the definition. The phrase “other similar agreement” encompasses any agreement that is, or in the future becomes, regularly entered into in the swap market that is a forward, swap or option on one or more rates, currencies, commodities, equity or debt securities or instruments, economic indices or measures of economic risk or value. However, traditional commercial and lending arrangements, or other non-financial market transactions, such as commercial, residential or consumer loans, cannot be treated as “swaps” under either the FDI Act or the Bankruptcy Code because the parties purport to document or label the transactions as “swap agreements.” Subsection (a)(1)(C) specifies that this definition of swap agreement applies only for purposes of the Bankruptcy Code and is inapplicable to the other statutes, rules and regulations enumerated in that section.

The definition also includes any security agreement or arrangement, or other credit enhancement, related to a swap agreement. This ensures that any such agreement, arrangement or enhancement is itself deemed to be a swap agreement, and therefore eligible for treatment as such for purposes of termination, liquidation, acceleration, offset and netting under the Bankruptcy Code and the FDIA. Similar changes are made in the definition of “forward contract,” “commodity contract” and “repurchase agreement.” An example of a security arrangement is a right of set off; examples of other credit enhancements are letters of credit, guarantees, reimbursement obligations and other similar agreements.

Subsections (a)(2) and (a)(3) amend the Bankruptcy Code definitions of “securities contract” and “forward contract,” respectively, to conform them to the definition in the FDIA, and also to include any security agreements or arrangements or other credit enhancements related to one or more such contracts. Subsection (a)(2), like the amendments to the FDIA amends the definition of “securities contract” to encompass options on securities and margin loans. The inclusion of “margin loans” in the definition is intended to encompass only those loans commonly known in the securities industry as “margin loans” and does not include other loans utilizing securities as collateral, however documented.

Subsection (a)(2) also specifies that purchase, sale and repurchase obligations under a participation in a commercial mortgage loan do not constitute “securities contracts.” While a contract for the purchase or sale or a participation may constitute a “securities contract”, the purchase, sale or repurchase obligation embedded in a participation agreement does not make that agreement a “securities contract.”

Subsection (b) amends the Bankruptcy Code definitions of “financial institution” and “forward contract merchant.” The definition for “financial institution” includes Federal Reserve Banks and the receivers or conservators of insolvent depository institutions.

Subsection (b) also adds a new definition of “financial participant” to limit the potential impact of insolvencies upon other major market participants. This definition will allow such market participants to close-out and net agreements with insolvent entities under sections 362(b)(6), 546, 548, 555, and 556 even if the creditor could not qualify as, for example, a commodity broker. The new subsection preserves the limitations of the right to close-out and net such contracts, in most cases, to entities who qualify under the Bankruptcy Code’s counterparty limitations. However, where the counterparty has transactions with a total gross dollar value of at least $1 billion in notional principal amount outstanding on any day during the previous 15-month period, or has gross mark-to-market positions of at least $100 million (aggregated across counterparties) in one or more agreements or transactions on any day during the previous 15-month period, the new subsection and corresponding amendments would permit it to exercise netting rights irrespective of its inability otherwise to satisfy those counterparty limitations. This change will help prevent systemic impacts upon the markets from a single failure.

Subsection (c) adds to the Bankruptcy Code new definitions for the terms “master netting agreement” and “master netting agreement participant.” The definition of “master netting agreement” is designed to protect the termination and close-out netting provisions of cross-product master agreements between parties. Such an agreement may be used (i) to document a wide variety of securities contracts, commodity contracts, forward contracts, repurchase agreements and swap agreements or (ii) as an umbrella agreement for separate master agreements between the same parties, each of which is used to document a discrete type of transaction. The definition includes security agreements or arrangements or other credit enhancements related to one or more such agreements and clarifies that a master netting agreement will be treated as such even if it documents transactions that are not within the enumerated categories of qualifying transactions (but the provisions of the Bankruptcy Code relating to master netting agreements and the other categories of transactions will not apply to such other transactions).

A “master netting agreement participant” is any entity that is a party to an outstanding master netting agreement with a debtor before the filing of a bankruptcy petition.

Subsection (d) amends section 362(b) of the Bankruptcy Code to protect enforcement, free from the automatic stay, of setoff or netting provisions in swap agreements and in master netting agreements and security agreements or arrangements related to one or more swap agreements or master netting agreements. This provision parallels the other provisions of the Bankruptcy Code that protect netting provisions of securities contracts, commodity contracts, forward contracts, and repurchase agreements. Because the relevant definitions include related security agreements, the reference to “setoff” in this provisions, as well as in section 362(b) (6) and (7) of the Bankruptcy Code, are intended to refer also to rights to foreclose on, and to set off against, obligations to return collateral security swap agreements, master netting arrangements, repurchase agreements, securities contracts, commodity contracts, or forward contracts. Collateral may be pledged to cover the cost of replacing the defaulted transactions in the relevant market, as well as other costs and expenses incurred or estimated to be incurred for the purpose of hedging or reducing the risks arising out of such termination. Enforcement of these agreements and arrangements is consistent with the policy goal of minimizing systemic risk.

Subsection (d) also clarifies that the provisions protecting setoff and foreclosure in relation to securities contracts, commodity contracts, forward contracts, repurchase agreements, swap agreements, and master netting agreements free from the automatic stay apply to collateral pledged by the debtor that is under the control of the creditor but that cannot technically be “held by” the creditor, such as receivables and book-entry securities, and to collateral that has been repledged by the creditor.

Subsection (e) amends section 546 of the Bankruptcy Code to provide that transfers made under or in connection with a master netting agreement may not be avoided by a trustee except where such transfer is made with actual intent to hinder, delay or defraud. This Section of the Act also clarifies the limitations on a trustee’s power to avoid transfers made under swap agreements.

The current codification of section 546 of the Bankruptcy Code contains two subsections designated as “(g)”; subsection (e) corrects this error.

Subsection (f) amends section 548(d) of the Bankruptcy Code to provide that transfers made under or in connection with a master netting agreement may not be avoided by a trustee except where such transfer is made with actual intent to hinder, delay or defraud. This amendment provides the same protections for transfers made under, or in connection with, master netting agreements as currently is provided for margin payments and settlement payments received by commodity brokers, forward contract merchants, stockbrokers, financial institutions, securities clearing agencies, repo participants, and swap participant under paragraphs (B), (C) and (D) of section 548(d).

Subsections (g), (h), (i) and (j) clarify that the provisions of the Bankruptcy Code that protect (i) rights of liquidation under securities contracts, commodity contracts, forward contracts and repurchase agreements also protect rights of termination or acceleration under such contracts, and (ii) rights to terminate under swap agreements also protect rights of liquidation and acceleration.

Subsection (k) adds a new section 561 to the Bankruptcy Code to protect the contractual right of a master netting agreement participant to enforce any rights of termination, liquidation, acceleration, offset or netting under a master netting agreement. Such rights include rights arising (i) from the rules of a securities exchange or clearing organization, (ii) under common law, law merchant or (iii) by reason of normal business practice. This is consistent with the current treatment of rights under swap agreements under section 560 of the Bankruptcy Code.

For the purposes of Bankruptcy Code sections 555, 556, 559, 560 and 561, it is intended that the normal business practice in the event of a default of a party based on bankruptcy or insolvency is to terminate, liquidate or accelerate securities contracts, commodity contracts, forward contracts, repurchase agreements, swap agreements and master netting agreements with the bankruptcy or insolvent party.

The protection of netting and offset rights in sections 560 and 561 is in addition to the protections afforded in sections 362(b)(6), (b)(7) and (b)(17). For example, cross-product netting will be protected from the automatic stay under section 561 even in the absence of a master netting agreement.

Sections 561(b) (2) and (3) limit the exercise of contractual rights to net or to offset obligations where one leg of the obligations sought to be netted relates to commodity contracts. Under subsection (b)(2), netting or offset is not permitted if the obligations are not mutual. This means, for example, that proprietary obligations cannot be netted or offset against obligations held for, or on behalf of, some other party. Even if the obligations are mutual, under subsection (b)(3) netting or offset is not permitted in a commodity broker bankruptcy if the party seeking to net or to offset has no positive net equity in the commodity account at the debtor. Subsections (b)(2) and (b)(3) limit the depletion of assets available for distribution to customers of commodity brokers. This is consistent with the principle of Subchapter IV of Chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Code, which gives priority to customer claims in the bankruptcy of a commodity broker.

Under the Act, the termination, liquidation or acceleration rights of a master netting agreement participant are subject to limitations contained in other provisions of the Bankruptcy Code relating to securities contracts and repurchase agreements. In particular, if a securities contract or repurchase agreement is documented under a master netting agreement, a party's termination, liquidation and acceleration rights would be subject to the provisions of the Bankruptcy Code relating to orders authorized under the provisions of SIPA or any statute administered by the SEC. In addition, the netting rights of a party to a master netting agreement would be subject to any contractual terms between the parties limiting or waiving netting or set off rights. Similarly, a waiver by a bank or a counterparty of netting or set off rights in connection with QFCs would be enforceable under the FDIA.

Subsection (1) clarifies that, with respect to municipal bankruptcies, all the provisions of the Bankruptcy Code relating to securities contracts, commodity contracts, forward contracts, repurchase agreements, swap agreements and master netting agreements (which by their terms are intended to apply in all proceedings under title 11) will apply in a Chapter 9 proceeding for a municipality. Although sections 555, 556, 559 and 560 provide that they apply in any proceeding under the Bankruptcy Code, this subsection makes a technical amendment in Chapter 9 to clarify the applicability of these provisions.

Subsection (m) clarifies that the provisions of the Bankruptcy Code related to securities contracts, commodity contracts, forward contracts, repurchase agreements, swap agreements and master netting agreements apply in a section 304 proceeding ancillary to a foreign insolvency proceeding.

Subsections (n) and (o) amend those provisions in the Bankruptcy Code concerning the liquidation of commodity brokers and stockbrokers. Subchapter III of Chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Code details specific rules for the liquidation of stockbrokers. Subchapter IV of Chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Code and regulations of the CFTC detail specific rules for the liquidation of commodity brokers. These authorities are designed to protect customers and customer property of an insolvent stockbroker or commodity broker.

Subsections (n) and (o) clarify the rights of parties to commodity contracts, securities contracts, forward contracts, swap agreements, repurchase agreements and master netting agreements with an insolvent commodity broker or stockbroker. They ensure that noncustomers will not defeat the priority scheme of Subchapter III or IV priority by gaining access to assets held in segregated customer accounts. The subsections also clarify that the exercise of termination and netting rights will not otherwise affect customer property or distributions by the trustee of the insolvent commodity broker or stockbroker after the exercise of such rights.

Subsection (p) amends section 553 of the Bankruptcy Code to clarify that the acquisition by a creditor of set off rights in connection with swap agreements, repurchase agreements, securities contracts, forward contracts, commodity contracts and master netting agreements cannot be avoided as a preference.

This subsection also adds set off of the kinds described in sections 555, 556, 559, 560, and 561 of the Bankruptcy Code to the types of set off excepted from section 553(b).

Section 9. Recordkeeping requirements

Section 9 amends section 11(e)(8) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act to explicitly authorize the FDIC, in consultation with appropriate Federal banking agencies, to prescribe regulations on recordkeeping with respect to QFCs. Adequate recordkeeping for such transactions is essential to effective risk management and to the reduction of systemic risk permitted by the orderly resolution of depository institutions utilizing QFCs.

Section 10. Exemptions from contemporaneous execution requirement

Section 10 amends FDIA section 13(e)(2) to provide that an agreement for the collateralization of governmental deposits, bankruptcy estate funds, Federal Reserve Bank or Federal Home Loan Bank extensions of credit or one or more QFCs shall not be deemed invalid solely because such agreement was not entered into contemporaneously with the acquisition of the collateral or because of pledges, delivery or substitution of the collateral made in accordance with such agreement.

The amendment codifies portions of policy statements issued by the FDIC regarding the application of section 13(e), which codifies the “D’Oench Duhme” doctrine. With respect to QFCs, this codification recognizes that QFCs often are subject to collateral and other security arrangements that may require posting and return of collateral on an ongoing basis based on the mark-to-market values of the collateralized transactions. The codification of only portions of the existing FDIC policy statements on these and related issues should not give rise to any negative implication regarding the continued validity of these policy statements.

Section 11. Damage measure

Section 11 adds a new section 562 to the Bankruptcy Code providing that damages under any swap agreement, securities contract, forward contract, commodity contract, repurchase agreement or master netting agreement will be calculated as of the earlier of (i) the date of rejection of such agreement by a trustee or (ii) the date of liquidation, termination or acceleration of such contract or agreement.

New section 562 provides important legal certainty and makes the Bankruptcy Code consistent with the current provisions related to the timing of the calculation of damages under QFCs in the FDIA.

Section 12. Asset-backed securitizations

Section 12 amends section 541 of the Bankruptcy Code to provide that certain assets transferred to an eligible entity in connection with an asset-backed securitization generally will not be included within the bankruptcy estate of the debtor. This provision recognizes that a valid transfer of such assets to the eligible entity, which is defined as an issuer or an entity engaged exclusively in such securitization transactions, generally eliminates the debtor’s legal or equitable interests in those assets. Accordingly, subject to the avoidance powers in section 548(a), the transfer will be treated as a sale of those assets not subject to avoidance. A significant exception to this provision is that if the trustee avoids the transfer from the debtor under section 548(a), then those assets will be included within the bankruptcy estate.

Section 13. SIPA stay

Section 13 amends SIPA to provide that an order or decree issued pursuant to SIPA shall not operate as a stay of any right of liquidation, termination, acceleration, offset or netting under one or more securities contracts, commodity contracts, forward contracts, repurchase agreements, swap agreements or matter netting agreements (as defined in the Bankruptcy Code and including rights of foreclosure on collateral), except that such order or decree may stay any right to foreclose on securities (but not cash) collateral pledged by the debtor or sold by the debtor under a repurchase agreement (a corresponding amendment to FDICIA is made by section 7). A creditor that was stayed in exercising rights against securities collateral would be entitled to post-insolvency interest to the extent of the collateral.

Section 14. Federal Reserve collateral requirements

Section 16 of the Federal Reserve Act (FRA) specifies the types of assets the Federal Reserve may use to back the currency. These assets include U.S. Treasury and agency securities that the Federal Reserve holds in its portfolio and, among other things, discount window loans extended under the provisions of section 13 of the FRA. Over the years, sections were added to the FRA that permit lending under provisions other than section 13 and against a broader range of collateral than allowed under that section. Section 14 of this bill would broaden the range of discount window loans eligible to back currency to include not only those extended under section 13 but also those extended under section 10A of the FRA relating to emergency advances to groups of member banks, section 10B relating to emergency advances to individual member banks, and section 13A relating to the discount of agricultural paper.

Section 15. Severability; effective date; application of amendments

Subsection (a) provides that if any provision of or amendment made by this Act is unconstitutional, the remaining provisions of the Act shall not be affected thereby.

Subsection (b) provides that the amendments made by the Act take effect on the date of enactment.

Subsection (c) provides that the amendments made by the Act shall not apply with respect to cases commenced, or to conservator/receiver appointments made, before the date of enactment.

(VI) any security agreement or arrangement or other credit enhancement related to any agreements or transactions referred to in subparagraph (I), (II), (III), or (IV).

Such term shall not be construed or applied so as to challenge or affect the characterization, definition, or treatment of any swap agreement or any instrument defined as a swap agreement herein, under any other statute, regulation, or rule, including the Securities Act of 1933, the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, the Trust Indenture Act of 1939, the Investment Company Act of 1940, the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, the Securities Investor Protection Act of 1970, the Commodity Exchange Act, and the regulations promulgated by the Securities and Exchange Commission or the Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

(vii) TREATMENT OF MASTER AGREEMENT AS 1 AGREEMENT.—Any master agreement for any contract or agreement described in any preceding clause of this subparagraph (or any master agreement for such master agreement or agreements), together with all supplements to such master agreement, shall be treated as a single agreement and a single qualified financial contract.
